

An offer to go to a Spiritualist church on a Friday night opened up a world Leah Crosby could only have dreamed of and head-first into a family that should have been dead long ago. The un-dead, her cousins, are funeral directors and Leah is fascinated and drawn into their world and the Spiritualist Movement where her own powers are opened up and developed, unknowingly to them all, to help with the horror that faced them. A horror they actually wished for. This book contains descriptions of scenes of an explicit nature which are suitable for adults only. The contents are not suitable for readers under the age of eighteen years of age. Travelling to hunt out antiques has given Andrew Harding a broad insight into the unraveling of the human mind. His fascination with the paranormal and also the supernatural world has inspired him to cross boundaries and write this trilogy. The people who have crossed his path have covered such a broad spectrum that he has realized there are no barriers to the depravity that could be hidden beneath the surface.
