

These poems investigate a panoply of subjects, from dawn train travels, journeys in time, place and the realm of the spirit. The body of work deftly binds events of the imagination as traded by the X Generation and the ancient world, to the surrealist vicissitudes of society today. Patrick creates potent blank verse, delicate alliteration and sensually pleasing similes: portals where horses, Art, Nature and love are placed on plinths. In this imaginary realm, shots are let loose above the bows of Ignorance, Evil and a Science Fiction vision of mechanised e-malfeasance.
