

International Review of Industrial and Organizational Psychology - 1993, Volume 8

This is the eighth volume of the International Review of Industrial and Organizational Psychology and contains contributions from the United States, United Kingdom, Australia, Sweden and Canada. As with previous volumes the chapters provide state of the art reviews of major topic areas within the I/O psychology field. Some of the chapters cover emerging issues and many more provide up-to-date reviews of established areas of interest. The text also provides reviews on innovation in organizations, management development, performance appraisals, measurement issues, medical and psychological aspects of jobs interventions, goal orientation and action control theory, corporate culture, organizational downsizing, and group processes in organizations.
